Applicant's election with traverse of Group I in the reply filed on June 23, 2005 is acknowledged. The traversal is on the ground(s) that the search classes of the two groups are expected to overlap and thus not present an undue burden. This is not found persuasive because the separate status in the art coupled with the possibility that the field of search may not overlap does present an undue burden to examine separate and distinct inventions in one application.

The requirement is still deemed proper and is therefore made FINAL.

Claims 12-14 stand withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim.

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 10 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Okamoto et al.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-9 and 11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Okamoto et al in view of Andler et al.

Okamoto discloses a journal bearing system comprising a bushing and a journal pin within the bushing wherein at least one of the bushing and journal pin has an engagement surface with an engagement length comprising a substrate material and a solid lubricant, the substrate material varying along the engagement length. Andler discloses a bearing assembly in which the concentration of the substrate material and a solid lubricant vary along an engagement circumference of the bearing. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the bearing of Okamoto such that the concentration of the solid lubricant varies along the engagement length of the bushing because this is taught and suggested by Andler as being a known manner of changing the physical properties of the bearing engagement surface. With respect to the specific materials of the composite material, Andler suggests the use of copper-based material of the substrate with lead as the solid lubricant. With respect to the specific concentrations, it would have been an obvious matter of design optimization to determine the ratios between the ends of the engagement length and the intermediate portion.

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
